INTRODUCTION

This collection of death/memorial cards represents a significant number of late nineteenth and twentieth century residents of southern Mercer County, especially in the region of the villages of St. Henry and Maria Stein. The nucleus of the collection was formed by the late Marcelyn M. Meinerding (1910–1993), who carefully collected and preserved these cards, later presenting them to the Mercer County Historical Museum. Through the years, other persons contributed additional cards and increased the size of the collection.

The cards are cultural artifacts of the region in that they are representative of the German-Catholic culture of Mercer County and are testaments to the art of design and printing existing in Mercer County. As objects of a culture that focused heavily on death, sentimentality, the process of mourning, the importance of remembrance of the departed, and the preservation of family ties, this collection has significant historical value. Each image on these cards, whether a sentimental depiction of a religious figure or a symbolic emblem of death, resurrection, or a similar religious belief, supported the family member, neighbor, or friend in focusing on these themes. As objects of art, they succeeded in eliciting deep emotional feelings.

The tradition of prayer cards developed in Germany and France with the advent of wood engraving and metal cuts as early as the fourteenth century. The prevalence of paper rather than parchment provided an inexpensive opportunity for all persons, including peasants, to have religious pictures, prayers, or biblical verses available to them in their homes. The widespread practices of pilgrimages to religious shrines and the use of indulgences often became associated with small prayer cards and pictures of saints. These cards not only kept the memory of those journeys alive for those who went but also served as mementos for friends and relatives as well. Thus this tradition extended to honoring the departed with a religious image, an epitaph, or a prayer associated with an indulgence. The practice provided a means to maintain the memory of the departed person in the family and in the community. By the 1880s, the invention of lithography as well as the photomechanical means of producing these cards in large numbers provided the impetus for the widespread usage of memorial cards, especially among Roman Catholics.

The earliest death/memorial cards in this collection date from 1884 and there are examples that continue through the late twentieth century. The collection contains cards for some of the original European-born settlers of that area and first generation Americans born to those early settlers. Because the area was almost exclusively German-Catholic, the early cards were written in German, have numerous depictions of sacred images, and contain various prayers to be recited for the deceased. Some of the cards for children are very small in size.

Additionally, these death/memorial cards contain genealogical data including birthplaces and surviving family members. One of them, that of Maria Catharine Schlegel, contains a detailed account of her death, the funeral, her monument, and biographical data. It reads, "Her last words within 5 minutes of her death at about a quarter past three, afternoon, after being disturbed were: "Oh! I just slept a little;" and her sentiments: "Let me sleep!" Thus peacefully accounted with her Maker she has slumbered away apparently painless."

Others include epitaphs or poems relating to the memory of that person or about the passage to eternal life. Examples of these early epitaphs include

*Tis hard to break the tender cord,
When love has bound the heart.
Tis hard, so hard, to speak the words:
"Must we forever part?"
Dearest father, we have laid thee
In the peaceful grave's embrace.
In that the memory will be cherished
Till we see thy glorious face.*

*Gone is one who in this life
Was a kind mother, a true wife.
She was by many virtues blest,
And piety among the best.
O, let us think of all she said,
And the kind advice she gave.
And let us do it, now she's dead
And sleeping in her lonely grave*

*Sleep on, dear Father, your labor's done
Your willing hands shall toil no more;
On earth they strove, in heaven they rest;
We miss you most who loved you best.*

After the turn of the twentieth century, circa 1910, more cards in this collection appear in English as the popularity of the German language was declining and English was being taught in the schools. Both German and English cards are used during World War I until circa 1925. It is interesting to note that a number of soldiers killed during World War I have their memorial cards in the German language. After 1931, all the cards were printed in English.

An examination of the printing styles on the memorial cards reveal artistic talent in the creation of the design and placement of words and phrases. The elaborate early German script is evident along with a variety of decorative elements that would appeal to rural German-Americans influenced by the High Victorian Gothic taste popular in America at that time. The majority of the German cards with embossed reproductions of paintings or depictions of religious scenes were purchased from a supplier and published by Benziger Brothers of Cincinnati. This firm had European offices and the name Einsiedeln, a city in Switzerland, appears on a number of them. Thus it can be concluded that many of these were printed in and imported from Europe. It was the responsibility of the local printer or undertaker to print the details on the opposite side of the card.

Michael Schlegel (1850–1920), a Buffalo, New York native, was a former school teacher, furniture maker, and also served as an undertaker and printer in St. Henry. He was responsible for printing many of the death cards for St. Henry residents. Death cards bearing his name as printer were decorative and depicted excellent examples of printing quality. The placement of phrases, names, and elaborate borders bear testimony of his artistic skill. Some of the cards also depict original designs such as the memorial card of Augusta Behrens. Where the German script was used on the cards, the most common lettering used was the Schwabacher type as noted in the one for Maria Margaretha Antoni, example 9. Other styles included the Gutenberg Gothic type as on the card for Katharina Ahlers, example 14. Another common print type was Condensed Black. Printers frequently resorted to various elaborate combinations of letters from these general types along with other decorative elements to give added style.

The paper quality of the cards is generally very good, ranging from moderately thick laid paper with linen texture to small thin pieces of paper with a high acidic content that were produced during the 1950s. The former paper will last for many years if protected from moisture and mildew, whereas the latter paper will probably deteriorate within several decades. During the 1940s, a fine example of paper with double folds is seen in a card for Rose Kanney, example 20.

The researcher is encouraged to examine the many variations in the spelling of a surname. The German script with its many variations of design may create confusion regarding a particular letter. The use of umlauts (¨) above letters in the original German can result in the addition of an “e” following the letter in type styles that do not provide for the umlaut, such as in ä to ae. Examples include Möller–Moeller and Börger–Boerger. Additionally, some German letters can also be interchanged. Examples include the following names:

P–B: Plota–Blota
F–V: Fian–Vian
D–T: Trautman–Drahman
Pf–F: Pfaler–Fehler
t–th: Berter–Berther
o–a: Sollman–Sallmann
C–K: Cunigunda–Kunigunda

Frequently one “n” will be dropped at the end of a name. For information on these details, the German/English Genealogical Dictionary by Ernest Thode is very helpful.

I have taken some liberties in order to clarify some of the information. I used Maria Stein rather than St. John, and St. Joe for Victoria, to note these Mercer County villages. All villages, cities, and towns are assumed to be in Ohio unless indicated to the contrary. In some instances, the location of the cemetery will appear in parentheses as will foreign countries. I also cross-referenced information on the memorial cards with that information contained in the various cemetery and historical books published in Mercer County in order to determine the location of the cemetery, date of death, or age of the person if not stated on the memorial card. A list of the major cemeteries referenced in this list follows this introduction. The term spouse (Sp.) is used to indicate either a husband or wife as a survivor. The birth name or a previous name is noted in parentheses and placed beside the name. On some cards a photograph or epitaph is indicated by the “x” symbol in the appropriate column. This indication is also made if the language of the card is German or is a combination of both German and English. In the second section, survivors and family members noted on the card are given only for those cards in German or on some very early cards. For contemporary cards (within the past fifty years) that have family information on them, I have noted “Family Data Listed.” The numbers assigned to the individual entries correspond in both sections of the book.

Finally it is hoped that this collection will be augmented through additions of other memorial cards given to the Historical Society. Joyce L. Alig, author, historian, president, and curator at the Mercer County Historical Society, early on recognized the value of this collection to Mercer County history, and I am indebted to her for this recognition. I am also indebted to Eugene Oliverio of Cincinnati for his assistance with sorting and cataloging this collection.
